BRITAIN IS WORRIED, TOO

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has denied stoutly in the house of commons that the United States dictates British foreign policy. Britain, too, is having misgivings about foreign policy, contrary to the opinion of the Anglophobes in the United States who are sure that Uncle Sam is planning to steal good-hearted old Wile Sam's shirt. Many Englishmen frankly fear the shirt-stealing may be reversed and are needing their government to take precautionary measures.

The similarity of misgivings is a clue to the real source of foreign policy uncertainty. It is not traceable wholly to the governments, in power, or to individuals within these governments, but to their positions relative to international events. Both the United States and Great Britain were forced into a war precipitated by the dynamic policy of Germany, a policy designed to take advantage of their uncertainty and wilful neglect of the rising threat to their security. Germany had come to stand for positive, as against Britain's negative, attitudes.

When Mr. Churchill became prime minister and, later, when the United States entered the war with the beginning of its lend-lease policy, Anglo-American objectives became positive only to the extent that they called for Germany's defeat. Japan's entry in the war broadened the objectives to include a new enemy. But aside from the general purposes stated in the Atlantic Charter—and now, themselves, being questioned—the United States and Great Britain were unable to present concrete alternatives to the detailed plans of the Axis. We were fighting defensively. We still are. The seeming weakness of our foreign policy is inherent in that fact.

In World War I, later cynicism to the contrary notwithstanding, the Allies were inspired by belief in the inevitable spread of democracy as the result of their efforts; they fought to make the world safe for democracy, as an antidote for the poisonous monarchial systems whose ambitions and hates were blamed for the war. They had the psychological benefit of a crusading spirit. They were fighting for a positive and expanding cause. Even cynics will not deny it gave them and their sympathizers a sense of purpose lacking today, when they must admit they see nothing clearly beyond the performance of their military task.

Meanwhile, both believe Russia must have what they lack—a vision of the future, but the fact is they have no evidence on this point stronger than their own surmises. Russian foreign policy, as yet, shows no sign of long-range purpose, but many signs of hasty improvisations. It does not mean there is no greater purpose to be served by the tremendous effort of the United Nations than their own survival, but only that the purpose has not yet emerged from the confusion of military expediency precipitated by Germany's challenge to international security.

STATISTICS AREN'T EVERYTHING

Statistics on the numerical strength of minority groups in this country, which are supposed to be feeling touchy about foreign policy decisions and certain details of military strategy, cannot tell the whole story.

The resentment of minorities cannot be measured statistically. There are Irish critical of this government's attitude toward Irish neutrality. There are Finns who differ with the attitude toward Finland. There are Italians resentful of things that have happened in Italy, and there are Poles who think wrong decisions have been made about Poland.

But to claim that the government therefore should temper its decisions because there are so many Russian-born, Irish-born, or German-born Americans, or because there are a certain number of Jews or Catholics in the United States is to surrender unconditionally the first tenet of American faith. This nation hasn't grown to be what it is by trying to appease the component parts of its population, but by trying to advance their common interests as Americans.

Spokesmen for the minority group, themselves, should be first to deny that they are more interested in their minority identities than in the general welfare of the United States. It is a certainty that many members of the groups have been gratuitously insulted by the too-ready assumption that they can be played off against one another by political manipulation, or that they are seeking political appeasement or plotting political revenge. If that were true, the United States would have lost the outstanding characteristic of its greatness—its common devotion to the ideal of freedom here for all its citizens, regardless of origin or belief.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, April 2

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a fairly pleasant and prosperous one, in spite of a few annoying or disturbing situations—probably due to emotional urges, personal indulgences or an immoderate or rash nature. The romantic, social or domestic scene dominates in the activities, but there may be desirable revamping of plans and purposes. There might be a revision of announcements or social functions.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured a pleasant and prosperous year, with minor annoying or disturbing conditions to be turned into lucrative, constructive channels. This is to be accomplished by means of a rigid supervision of the conduct, emotions and indulgences, lest they prevent excellent prospects from becoming gratifying accomplishments. There may be change of plans, with travel, rearrangements of social functions.

A child born on this day will possess excellent cultural qualities, with talents and high aspirations. Despite tendencies to personal indulgence. It will enjoy a successful and happy career.

For Monday, April 3

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a most promising one, with noble, generous and expansive vibrations to stimulate business and personal affairs. There may be many activities centered around the pursuit of pleasure, with elders, superiors and employers ready to proffer the friendly hand. It is a time for forging ahead to advanced goals of ambition.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of outstanding success, happiness and prosperity. It is a time for reaching to the goal of your heart's desire in whatever direction the aspirations may lead. The emphasis may be on social, domestic or romantic engagements, with prosperity and personal gratification in sight. Expanding rays stimulate finance, ambitions and aspirations, with friends and those in influential places, assisting. Health and happiness are progressing.

A child born on this day may be possessed of many capabilities, ambitions and aspirations, which assure high spots of attainment and pleasure. It may occupy a high place in society or the professions.

The temper and heroism of Japanese Christians came home to me when I saw them risking their safety to share their limited food supply with us over eight long months. Christ was not repatriated on the Gripsholm. He is still out there.—Dr. William Axling, Baptist missionary.

In the long view there can be no lasting peace in the world unless such peoples as the Finns are to have their independence and lands restored.—Herbert Hoover.

Medicine is the only profession that labors incessantly to destroy the reason for its own existence.—James Bryce, 1914.

Any individual who comes to America should become a citizen of this country. Those who do not diligently go through the process of becoming naturalized should be taken into custody and shipped back to the lands from which they came.—Rep. Jennings Randolph of West Virginia.

Arms, women and books need to be looked at every day.—Dutch Proverb.

By the end of this year Japan will have a strength in organic divisions equal not only to our planned strength in Europe, but in the Asiatic theater as well.—Col. Warren Clear, war department general staff.

Misfortune comes to all men and most women.—Chinese Proverb.

This is the first war in centuries we've had the luxury to stay out of—and we're belligerently neutral because of this.—Robert Brennan, Elre minister to the United States.

Education is not concerned primarily with intellectual luxuries, but with elements which make the individual a valuable member of society.—President William M. Lewis of Lafayette college.

Vitamin Deficiency Signs Misunderstood

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE vitamin craze has served to whip up an orgy of illogical thinking both among ordinary people and among experts in nutrition. Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

But the illogic of the experts and of the laity take slightly different forms.

The vitamins were a godsend to the experts. Because the distinguishing sign of an expert is that he works in a laboratory. And the experts can take experimental rats in a laboratory and by juggling the vitamins in their diet they can produce hairless rats, and scabby rats, and blind rats, and paralyzed rats, and neurotic rats, and nearly anything in the way of rats. And having reduced the rats to a hairless, blind, paralyzed state of physical, moral and mental decay they could restore them to rosy health by restoring the vitamins.

The rat being a scavenger and having adapted itself to a mixed diet was a perfect laboratory animal for the vitaminists. Those old reliable experimental animals, the guinea pig and rabbit, having learned to subsist on lettuce, didn't exhibit any physiologic fire-works at all under vitamin experiments. They probably have learned to manufacture vitamins themselves.

Now the laymen's wandering from truth on the subject of the vitamins came from the fallacy known in logic as an amphibology. In short, emotional thinking!

EMOTIONAL THINKING
Vitamin is a very emotional word. It is too bad the first name proposed for these substances "accessory food factors," was not retained. It is unemotional. But vitamins suggests vitality. If you haven't got vitality you need vitamins. So if you lack pep, or appetite, or sleep poorly, or if your boy friend has cooled off, the natural answer is vitamins and you go down and squander some hard-earned dough on vitamins for vitality.

Besides, the layman doesn't understand that the diagnosis of vitamin deficiency depends on definite signs, not vague symptoms. There are blood tests for the presence or deficiency of vitamins in your body, and they should be used to decide whether the vitamins are needed. But who would wait for that when the get-health-quick lure beckons from any vitamin bazaar?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetics," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

PENNA. R. R.WASTE PAPER is one of the NATION'S MOST CRITICAL
WAR MATERIALS

Hundreds of old books and magazines lying unused in Salem homes and offices are urgently needed now as raw material for thousands of essential items of war.

Waste paper is as important as powder since more than 700,000 military items are either made of waste paper products or are paper-wrapped for shipment overseas.

The increasingly critical and dangerous waste paper shortage would be relieved immeasurably if we throw into the fight all of the useless old books and magazines, of no interest to servicemen, now gathering dust on our bookshelves or lying untouched in our attics, closets and cellars.

Since the average book weighs about a pound, one unused book will make two containers for life-saving blood plasma, six cartons for the U.S. Army emergency "K" rations ten paperback boxes for 50 cal. bullets, 30 containers for lifeboat inflation cartridges or scores of other military items.

Waste paper collections will be made in Salem Thursday and Friday, April 6 and 7.

THE RED CARNATION by BURTON STEVENSON

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

"And then you came home?" Duffy laughed. "Just like that, eh? Well, all I can say is that those are wonderful stories. They fit together like cabinet work. I'll bet you stayed up all the rest of the night polishing them up."

Franklin Terry got slowly to his feet. His face flushed.

"Look here, officer," he began. "Sit down," said Duffy sternly, and the boy sat down abruptly.

"Now there's some questions I want to ask you. In the first place, where's the gun?"

"In the drawer of the desk there, where father always kept it."

Duffy pulled open the drawer and took out an old-fashioned Smith & Wesson .38 revolver, snapped it open, and looked at the cylinders.

"There are three empty shells," he remarked.

"Probably the ballistics man fired one," Tony suggested.

"That makes two. Who fired the third one?"

"How do I know?" the boy retorted. "I didn't. I might have been fired a long time ago."

Duffy slipped the revolver into his pocket and sat down again.

"There's one point," he said. "When you were sitting on the bed there in McKibben's apartment, you heard him come back in after mailing that letter, and then you said you heard him say something. What was it he said?"

"I don't know. I didn't catch it. It sounded as though he told somebody to hush."

"Told somebody to hush? Was it a long sentence?"

"No, just a word or two. 'Oh, hush, or something like that.'"

"Did it sound as though he was scared?"

"No, I don't think so. More as though he was surprised. It sounded as though he started to say something, and then the gun went off before he could finish."

"You had never heard McKibben's voice, had you?"

"No, I never had."

"So you don't really know whether it was McKibben speaking or somebody else?"

"No, I don't. I supposed it was him because I didn't know anybody else was there. I don't see yet how anybody else could have been there."

"And that was all you heard?"

"Yes, that was all."

"There wasn't any other noise at all after the shot was fired?"

"I didn't hear any."

"How long did you sit there on the bed?"

"I don't know. A minute, maybe."

"And then you ran into his bedroom?"

"I started to and tripped over something and fell."

"Did you make any noise?"

"Of course I made some noise. Quite a lot."

"You still had the gun in your hand?"

"Yes, I told you that."

"I want to hear some of it again. You stayed there on your knees for another minute, with the gun pointed toward the door, and then, when nobody came, you got up and ran into the other bedroom—is that right?"

"That's it."

"Was anybody in the bedroom when you got there?"

"No, nobody but the dead man."

"Did you look around?"

"Of course I looked around. I thought the person was there who had shot McKibben."

"It didn't occur to you that he might have shot himself?"

"No, that didn't occur to me."

"Did the boy slowly, 'You see I heard somebody talking.'"

"You didn't hear anybody come in with him?" Duffy asked. "When he came back from mailing the letter, I mean."

"Oh, no. I'm sure he came in by himself."

"Now think carefully. Was there a gun lying by the body?"

"The boy closed his eyes in an effort at recollection. Then he shook his head."

"I didn't see any gun. I don't think there was any gun. I'd have seen it when I stooped over the body."

"But McKibben was still alive?"

"His eyes looked alive. They looked up at me sort of surprised. Then they seemed to go out."

"And you changed the flowers, and heard the bell, and opened the door and went out?"

"The boy nodded wearily."

"That's right."

"You didn't look around any more for the murderer?"

"No—I didn't want to find him. He might have taken a shot at me."

"You didn't look in the bathroom?"

"No, I didn't look anywhere."

Duffy settled back in his chair and glanced at the columnist. "Any questions you want to ask him, Terry?"

"I don't think so. It seems straight enough. I don't see any holes in it."

"Unless it's one big hole," Duffy pointed. "Look here, young man," he added, suddenly, "do you know how to bolt a door from the outside when the bolt is on the inside?"

"Sure!" answered the boy. Everybody knows that old trick. And he passed a key to the inside."

"Did you know it was done in this way?"

"Yes, I read the papers. The door certainly wasn't bolted when I was there. I must have been done after I left. I don't see why."

"Neither did Duffy see why. Nor did he. It seemed just as silly as that red carnation in McKibben's buttonhole."

"There was only one place the murderer could have gone. He must have been in the bathroom. He had heard the boy fall and had dived in there out of sight, and watched him. That ringing at the door must have given him a terrible start. Like the knocking at the gate in Macbeth....

Duffy turned all this over in his mind. Then he looked at the boy, his face at its grimmest.

"What was it you tripped over in that bedroom?" he asked.

"I don't know. It might have been a rug."

"Did you straighten it out after you tripped over it?"

"No, of course not. I ran right into the other room."

"And didn't come back?"

"No, I told you what I did. I went straight out with Leda."

"Then how do you explain the fact that the rug was straightened out when I saw it next morning?" Duffy demanded.

"The boy did not reply, just sat staring. Then he shook his head helplessly."

"The detective gave a snort of disgust, swung around to Leda and went over the ground again with her, as he had with her brother. Finally, he had Lucy, the colored servant, in."

"Do you know what time they got back from New York?" Duffy asked.

"Yes, suh. I was worried and waited up for them. It was most four o'clock."

Duffy looked at Leda. "Took you quite a while, didn't it?" he asked.

"According to your story, it couldn't have been much after two when you left the apartment. That leaves at least an hour unaccounted for."

"We couldn't find a taxi," she explained. "We had to walk all the way to Columbus Circle. Then, when we got to Grand Central, we had to wait nearly half an hour for a train. When we got to Mount Vernon, there was no taxi at the station and we had to walk home."

"Got an answer for everything, haven't you?" Duffy grunted sourly.

"I'm going to be frank with you two. You're in this pretty deep, and we haven't got anybody's word but your own for what happened. I'm going to check you up as far as I can, and I warn you that if I find you have not been telling the truth, I'll charge you with McKibben's murder. In view of that, does either one of you want to change your story any?"

He looked at one of them and then at the other. Tony looked at them too. Surely there was one detail that the girl would want to change!

But they both shook their heads. "Any way you look at it," Detective Duffy went on grimly, "this boy seems to be the only one who could possibly have killed McKibben."

"I don't see how you make that out," young Terry protested.

"I'll tell you how I make it out. You admit that it was you who put that bloody flower in McKibben's buttonhole. You admit that you know how to bolt a door from the outside. Now I'd like you to explain to me why anybody but you should do that after the carnations had been changed?"

"I could have denied knowing how to bolt the door if I'd wanted to, couldn't I? And why should I have bolted the door?"

"Because nobody but you knew that you'd changed the carnations," (To be continued)

English Coastal Areas Are Closed To Visitors

(By Associated Press) LONDON, April 1.—The approach of the western invasion D-day finds the British Isles locked up tighter than a pair of button shoes—both inside and out—to prevent leakage of information to the enemy.

The most drastic of a series of security steps became effective today when visitors were excluded from a restricted area 10 miles deep and more than 700 miles long on the southern and eastern coast of England.

It was emphasized the measures do not indicate the attack is imminent.

United States authorities have imposed a 100 per cent censorship on the news of convoy arrivals in the European theater of operations.

Inside England they are discouraging excessively long furloughs.

Music and hula dancing feature the opening of the Hawaiian legislature.

Italian King May Step Down, Report

(By Associated Press) NAPLES, April 1.—Unconfirmed rumors that King Vittorio Emanuele is about to abdicate in favor of Crown Prince Umberto were widely circulated in southern Italy today.

The prince was absent from his villa, having visited his father yesterday, and at that time the prince said he knew nothing tending to confirm the rumor.

Members of the King's house were not immediately available.

An associate of Premier Badoglio said yesterday the government had heard nothing from the King to indicate any change in his intention to remain on the throne at least until the Allied armies reach Rome.

The King's abdication, however, would remove virtually the only obstacle to the "democratization" of the Badoglio government for which the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia has called.

Federal Judge Halts Rent Eviction Order

COLUMBUS, April 1.—Federal Judge Mel G. Underwood yesterday enjoined Municipal Judge William B. Downer of Steubenville from evicting a tenant after the OPA rent director at Steubenville had issued an eviction order with a 90-day grace period.

The injunction suit was brought by Columbus OPA attorneys.

The litigation involves Louis W. May, owner of the rental property, who sold it to Robert B. Barr and his wife. The Barrs intended to occupy the home themselves, the OPA officials said.

On March 18 May asked the Steubenville rent director to evict the tenant. An order was issued for him to leave "within 90 days."

May, apparently dissatisfied with the 90-day grace period, filed a petition in municipal court at Steubenville asking the tenant be evicted, the OPA said.

The case had been set for hearing April 4, and the enjoinder here was asked to halt any action that might be ordered the day of the trial, OPA officials said.

Choice of Tax Dates

COLUMBUS, April 1.—Farmers—the only persons who have a choice of dates for filing their declarations of estimated 1944 income tax—may make their returns on either April 15 or Dec. 15.

Harry F. Busby, internal revenue collector for the 28-county Columbus district, said today.

Farmers who file by the earlier deadline, Busby added, may pay their income tax in four quarterly installments, but those who wait until Dec. 15 must pay the entire tax in one lump sum.

Here's a very funny thing about War Bonds

IT'S A FUNNY THING, but many people still have the wrong slant on War Bonds.

These people think that when they buy a Bond, they're giving, or donating their money to the war.

You might say they have a grin-and-bear-it attitude about all their War Bond purchases.

Well, that's a strange attitude. Because while buying Bonds is patriotic, and while it is necessary to help the Government pay for planes and tanks and guns, it is not a personal sacrifice.

In fact, buying a War Bond is just about the most advantageous thing you can possibly do with your money.

Why?

You couldn't make a safer investment. The Government itself backs every dollar you invest.

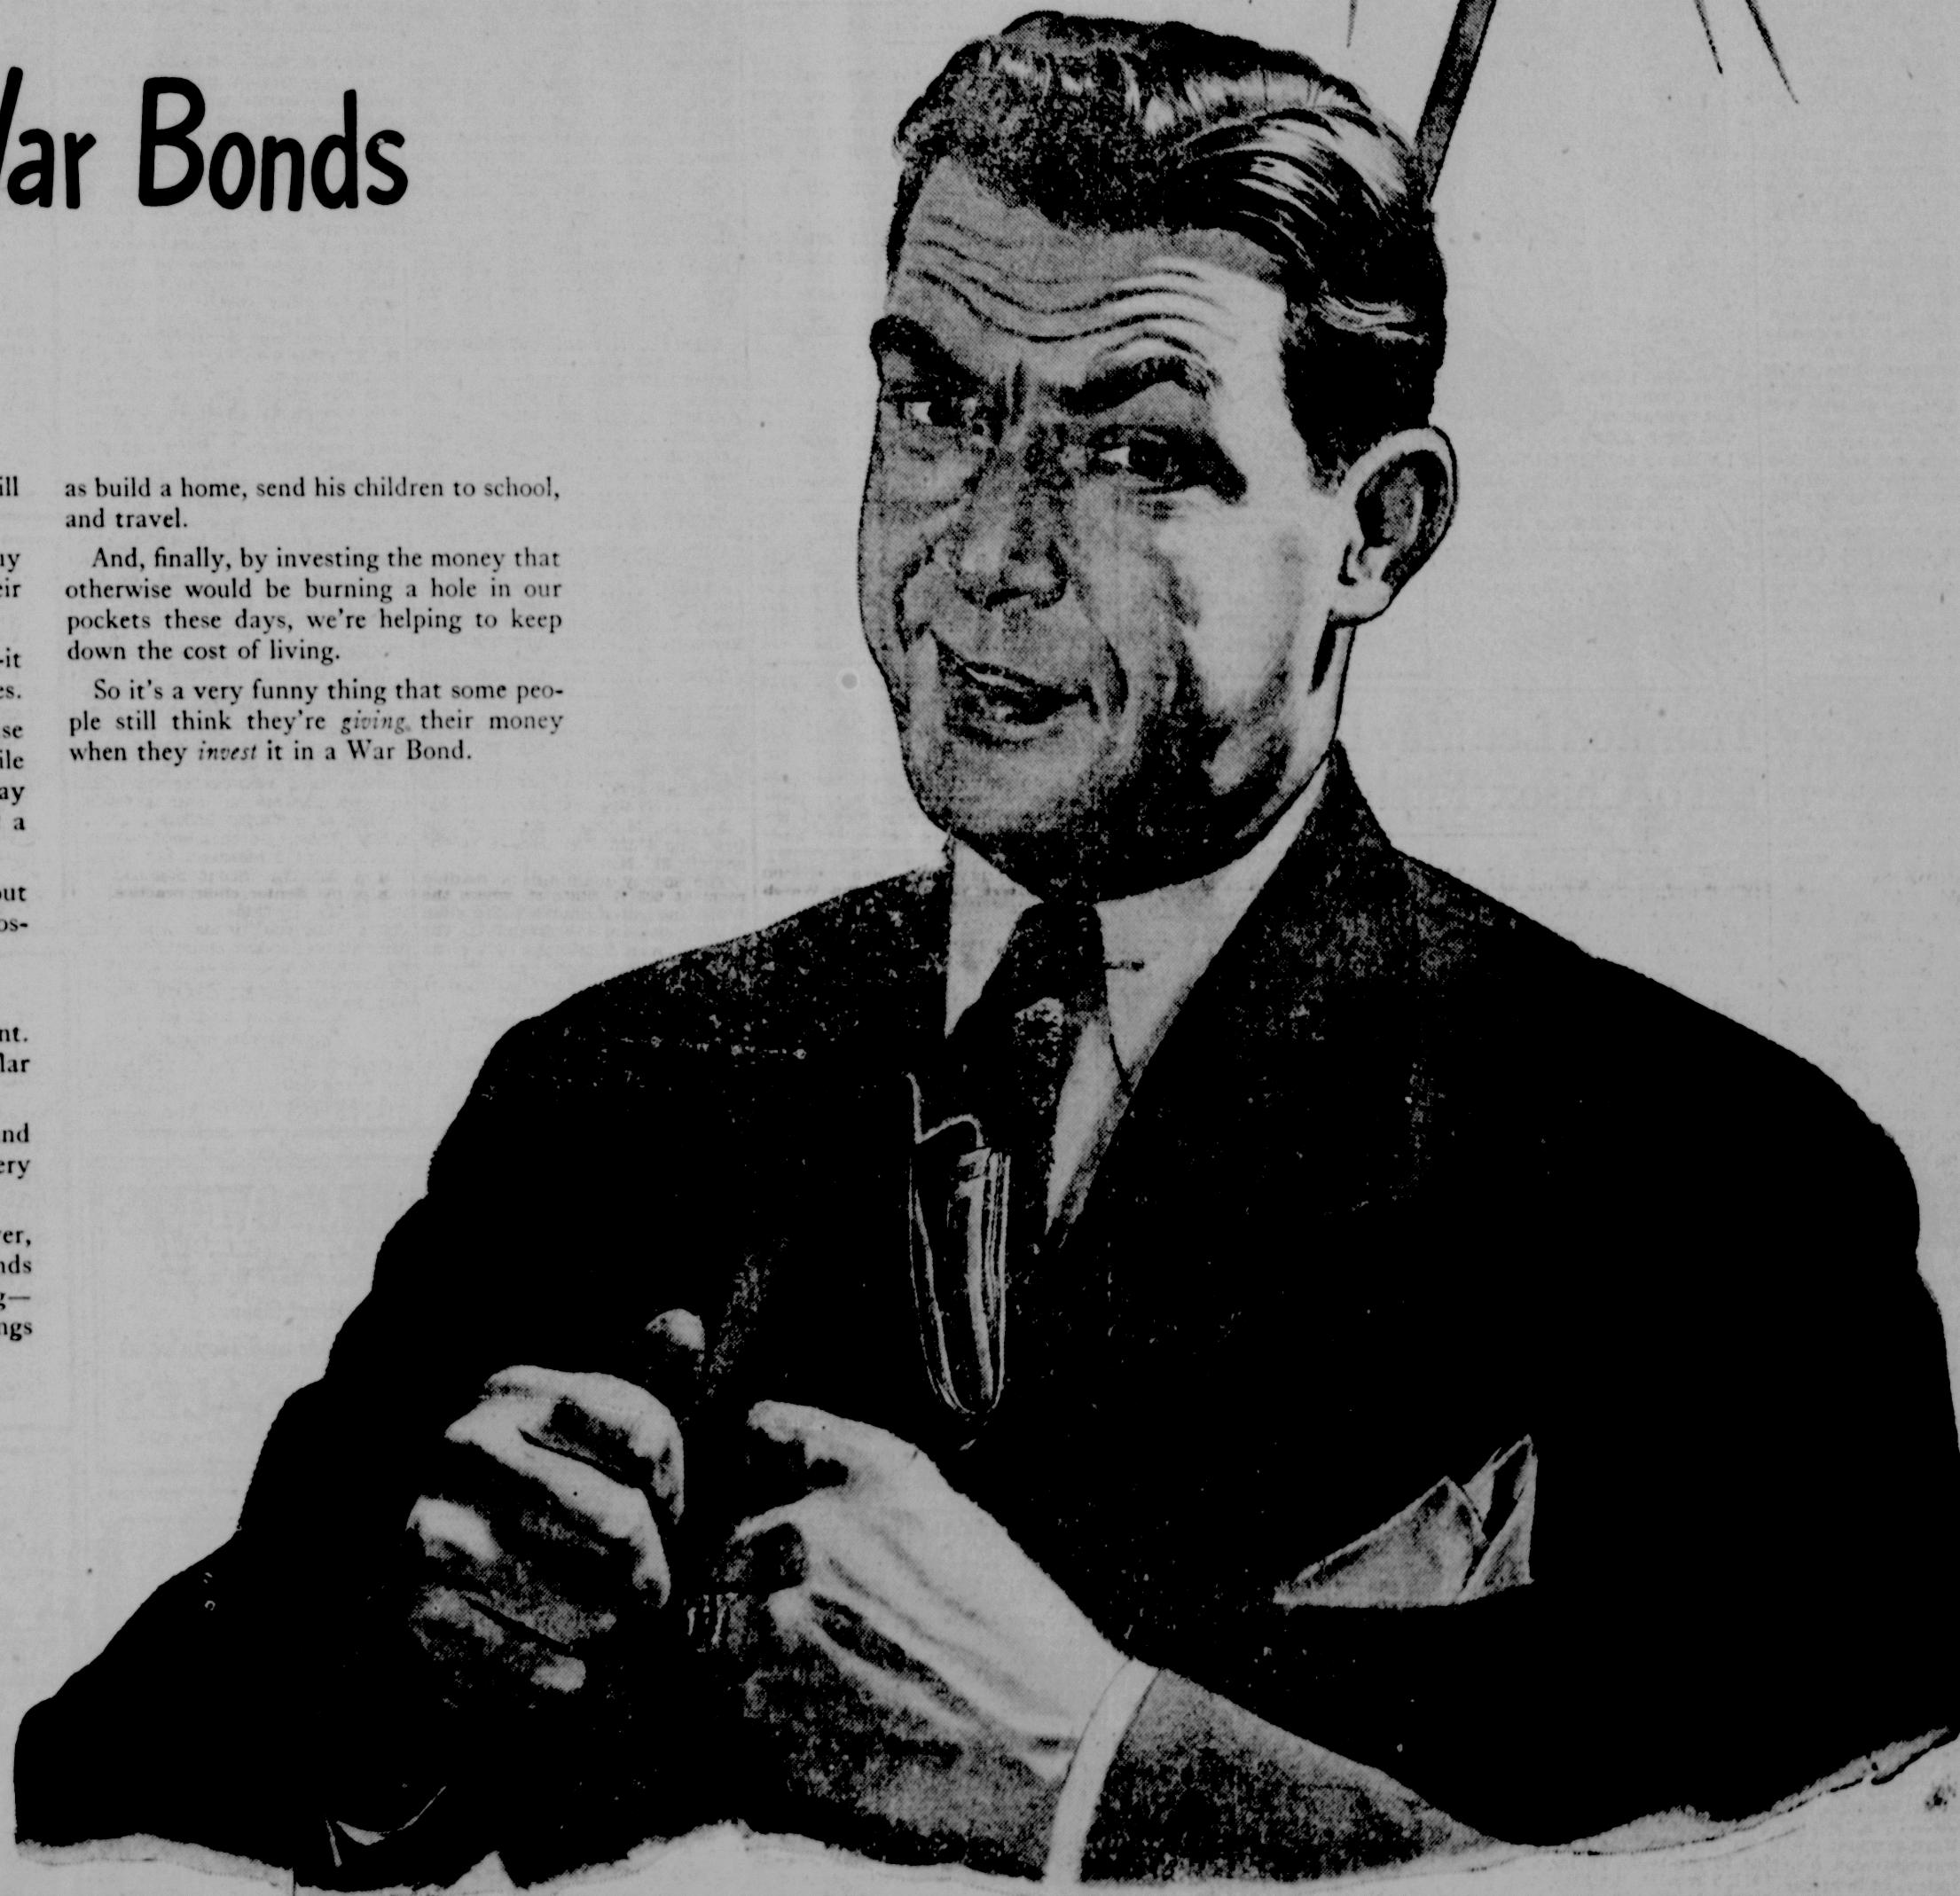

And the Government pays a good, sound rate of interest—you get $4 back for every $3 you put in.

That means that when the war is over, everybody who's been buying War Bonds will have a comfortable financial backlog—a backlog that will help him do such things as build a home, send his children to school, and travel.

And, finally, by investing the money that otherwise would be burning a hole in our pockets these days, we're helping to keep down the cost of living.

So it's a very funny thing that some people still think they're giving their money when they invest it in a War Bond.

Let's all KEEP BACKING THE ATTACK!

McKechnie Emphasizes Relaxation For Cincinnati Pitchers

NEWCOMERS ON REDS' ROSTER

Deacon Starts Working With New Moundsmen As They Arrive

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 1.—The postman is ringing every hour at the Reds' spring headquarters. It seems that every other mother's son, who isn't hurling bombs for Uncle Sam, wants to toss a home-ride for Cincinnati.

There is only one answer to the mail deluge. The boys know that this will be pitcher's year, and that Manager Bill McKechnie is an ace when it comes to juggling flingers into championships.

This seems as good a time as any to find out how the Deacon does it. What are his secrets for a winning staff? But, first of all, who are the young hopefuls who will receive the master's attention this year?

Two Syracuse Stars
There are two very important (as far as the Reds are concerned) newcomers. The roster lists them as Tomas de la Cruz and Arnold Carter.

De la Cruz, a Cuban, was a 21-game winner last year for Syracuse. The dark right-hander had six shutouts, beat Newark twice in the playoffs, one a 3-hit shutout, and blanked Toronto in the Governor's Cup finals.

Carter, a southpaw, also with Syracuse, sewed up the Governor's Cup for the Chiefs by limiting the Reds to six hits and scored the winning run of the 2-0 score himself after beating out an infield hit. Lefty applied seven whitewashes for the season in chalking up 14 wins.

Now, how does McKechnie handle pitchers like de la Cruz, Carter and others?

"Well, I start working with my pitchers as soon as they report to see that they have the right mental attitude," says Bill.

Relaxation is very important to a pitcher, I stress that at all times," continues McKechnie. "Then I teach them to throw hard, and get the ball over the plate. I try to make them coordinate their motion and get the whole body into the pitch."

"One of the first things I tell a young pitcher is to develop one delivery. That's all he needs. When they try to fool the batters with sidearm, overhand, and other pitches, they are only fooling themselves."

Bill always keeps an eye on his moundsmen whether it be in training or during the season. Whenever a little fault crops up, the Deacon takes the hurler aside and tries to correct the trouble.

"I don't believe in pitchers rotating during the season either," says Bill. "Some are better than others against a certain club. I pitch them when I think they can win. They don't need regular turns."

Weather A Factor
"Often, the weather has a lot to do with a pitcher. I talk to my men, find out how they feel, and remember what they have done before under similar conditions."

"When I see a pitcher is losing a game because the club is having a bad day in the field, I take him out. I can't take the infielders out, but I can save the pitcher. It's going to be tough on the pitchers this year though. They won't be taken out as often because when the draft boards get through shaping the pennant fight, we won't have too many left. It will be a battle of teams instead of squads, and the race will go to the strongest."

If Mr. McKechnie has his way, it will be the Reds.

Yale's 165-Pounder Depends On Keen Ears To Pin Rivals

By LOU BLACK
AP Features

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—One of the leading candidates for Yale's wrestling team is sandy-haired Bob Russell of Binghamton, N. Y., who depends on his ears to help him pin his opponents.

Russell's keen ears substitute for his eyes. He hasn't been able to see since he was five years old—a kindergarten student—when he was struck in the left eye by a croquet mallet. In a short time he lost the sight of both eyes.

Solidly-built, strong and determined, the 18-year-old Yale junior smiles as he explains, "you might think I'm trying to kid you, but really I'm sincere when I tell you I can hear my opponents. In this way I can almost tell their every move. For that matter, I can actually hear a tree."

Russell received his secondary education at the New York Institute for the Blind and was a student for two years at Hamilton college before he transferred to Yale last fall. When Eddie O'Donnell, Eli mat coach, issued his call for varsity wrestlers, Bob was among the first to report.

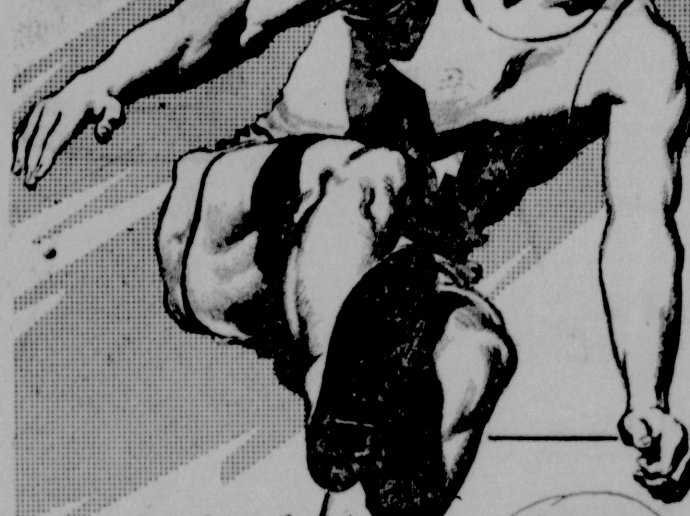

O'Donnell has been impressed by the 165-pound Russell's grappling talents, so much so that the mentor believes Bob is a potential intercollegiate champ. Bob has his work cut out because Gene Smith,

THORNTON LEE MAY BE ANSWER TO CHISOX PITCHING PROBLEM

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, April 1.—Jovial, cigar-smoking Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, may have one of his pitching worries erased from his mind today.

Southpaw Thornton Lee is scheduled to take the mound against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Louisville, Ky., in the first of a two-game series. If the portside shows that an operation last fall has cured the source of his arm trouble, the Sox hopes of winning the American league pennant will take a big jump.

Back in 1941 Lee won 22 games and lost 11 with an earned run average of 2.37. Then his arm trouble developed. He won only two games in 1942 and six last year. Dykes and Lee both are keeping their fingers crossed and hoping no one springs an April fool gag. Dykes certainly could use a 22-game winning pitcher.

Other major league news: BROOKLYN DODGERS—Mickey Owen, first string catcher, reported.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS—Whitely Kurowski, third baseman, pulled ancient hidden ball trick on Ken O'Dea in intra-squad game. O'Dea had tripled, then was caught off third to dismay of Manager Billy Southworth, who was coaching at the hot corner.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS—Catcher Myron Hayworth reported.

WASHINGTON SENATORS—Milo Candini, Dutch Leonard and Early Wynn picked for mound duty against Martin Bombers today.

CHISOX LIST 17 HURLERS

CHICAGO—Jimmy Dykes isn't taking any chances on running short of pitching talent. His Chicago White Sox roster lists 17 hurlers, six of them left handers.

team captain, wrestles at the same weight.

Bob has no seeing-eye dog but owns a cane. "I don't know why," says Bob. "I never use the dog-gone thing."

In his free time he likes to listen to the radio, go for walks and to the movies. "Fishing, too, gives me a big thrill," says the husky youth.

Beau Gets $25,000 Birthday Present

By FRITZ HOWELL

NEW YORK, April 1.—This is Beau Jack's 23rd birthday, and sometime before dusk he'll step into Uncle Mike Jacobs' 20th Century Sporting club office and pick up a $25,000 birthday present.

And that is no "April Fool" gag. The $25,000—or thereabouts—will be the ex-bootblack's bit of last night's $87,802 gate receipts at Madison Square garden, where the Bounding Beau pounded out a 10-round decision over Juan Zurita of Mexico City, the N. B. A.'s new lightweight champion who was making his first eastern appearance.

Zurita made Beau Jack miss plenty of punches, but the gorgeous Georgian whittled out the verdict of having much the better of the infighting, and by forcing the action all the way in the overweight, non-title scrap. Jack weighed 136, Zurita 133½.

Beau Jack came out of the Zurita fight with two injured hands, and a strained back. He hurt his hands hitting the Mexican, and hurt his back missing him, Beau said. Zurita's only marks of battle were some rosy red spots around his mid-section.

Beau's hands aren't hurt so badly that he can't pick up that $25,000 check, however.

BOUDREAU NAMES STARTING HURLERS

LAFAYETTE, Ind., April 1.—Manager Lou Boudreau has his hurling schedule ready for the Cleveland Indians' exhibition games next week.

A break in the weather indicated good playing conditions for the game with Cincinnati Sunday, and the Tribe mentor fell back on pitchers previously scheduled for the cancelled game with Pittsburgh last week.

Rookies Mike Nymick, Hal Klein and Eddie Klemm will see action against the Reds at Indianapolis, Ind., in the opener.

For the first local game Boudreau will unveil his "three aces"—Mel Harder, Al Smith and Allie Reynolds. He promised fans at the beginning of training they would see the Indians' top-notch hurlers in the first exhibition contest here. They will hurl against the Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday.

For the intervening game Monday with the Freeman field Army flyers Boudreau plans to use three more rookies, George Hook, Bob Palica and Steve Gronck.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, April 1.—About a year ago America's women bowlers presented to the Army an A2-0 bomber plane, purchased with their nickels and dimes . . . the Women's International Bowling congress has just received a report on the plane's "enviable combat record."

In two months it engaged in 16 combat missions, striking against troop concentrations, destroying enemy ammunition dumps and engaging in a ground support mission coordinated with the landing at Saider . . . it dropped 17,800 pounds of bombs and fired 1,298 rounds of 20 mm ammunition . . . next Saturday the bowling girls will present an ambulance plane to the Army Air Forces and they're collecting more nickels and dimes for another.

KEEPING THE TRADITION

LL Col. King Gill, reputedly the man responsible for the tradition that keeps Texas A. and M. cadets on their feet throughout every football game, now is flight surgeon at Majors field, Greenville, Tex., and presumably is responsible for keeping the air force cadets on their toes . . . the story is that Gill was very lowly sub when the Aggies played center at Dallas, Jan. 2, 1922, and was in the stands with the other cadets . . . when A. and M. players, one after another, were forced out by injuries, Coach D. X. Bible sent for Gill and told him to suit up . . . he didn't get into the game, but the summons was enough to create the tradition that every cadet should be on his feet, ready to go in there and play if called.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Will Wedge, New York Sun: "Yankee Outfielder Bud Metheny won a sewing set at a punch board game. It may be useful, as the team has a lot of loose ends that need stitching."

SHORTS AND SHELLS

Word trickling in from the west coast is that Dan Topping has appointed Tom Gallery, the Los Angeles promoter, as business manager of the football Dodgers, and gallery already has signed for four exhibition that will enable the club to open the season with a profit instead of a $30,000 deficit.

Wally Butts, Georgia grid coach, was a recent visitor on the Notre Dame campus but wasn't lucky enough to find any boys flunking out of the Navy . . . Charles I. Clegg, believed to be the only person who has seen every Penn relay carnival will celebrate his 50th anniversary as a custodian of prizes this spring.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

ing a renewal of fishing rights in Russian waters for five years. From the Japanese standpoint that's almost humanitarian, since they are largely dependent on fish for food, and most of their fish comes from Soviet waters.

Despite the seriousness of their loss in oil, the Japanese can't say it isn't just retribution. They forced the Soviet to make a treaty giving the oil concessions back in 1925 when the Red government hadn't the strength to oppose the high-handed demand.

Russia's move will inspire many people to ask whether this means she may join the Allies in the war against Japan after Hitler has been dealt with. Only time can answer to that, but I don't think we should assume in advance of the event that the Soviet will go to war with Japan.

We must remember that Russia, despite the terrific power she is showing against Germany, has been grievously hurt herself. She might want time to nurse her wounds. Also, don't forget that she has a non-aggression pact with Japan. However, we don't need to abandon hope that she will at least grant us air bases from which to strike against Japan proper.

Train Kills Farmer

DELAWARE, April 1.—A Chesapeake & Ohio locomotive struck and killed Frederick J. Clements, 72-year-old farmer of near Powell, as he walked along the track.

Theatre Attractions

"The Fighting Seabees," a tale of the Navy's hard-working, hard-fighting, hard-loving battalion with John Wayne, Dennis O'Keefe, Susan Hayward.

"The Fighting Seabees," billed at the State Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is a graphic description of the duties of the Seabees, navy construction unit, and tells of the three-cornered romances of Dennis O'Keefe, Susan Hayward and John Wayne. A highlight of the film is a battle which arises when the building unit lands on an island partially abandoned by the Japs. William Frawley, Leonid Kinsky, J. M. Kerrigan and Grant Withers also have leading roles.

Flowing at the State Wednesday is "My Best Gal," the plot of which concerns a group of 18-year old hopefuls, with Jane Withers as their leader, trying to get a break on Broadway.

Ann Miller has the leading role in "Hey, Rookie" which shows at the State Thursday through Saturday.

Arthur Lake is cast as a radio soundman on his honeymoon in "The Ghost That Walks Alone," which shows at the Grand Sunday and Monday, along with "Swing Out the Blues," starring Bab Haynes and Lynn Merrick.

Tuesday and Wednesday a double bill, "Women in War" and "Hat Check Honey," is scheduled at the Grand.

A double feature, "Silver City Riders" and "Weekend Pass," is billed for Thursday through Saturday at the Grand.

CHAPLIN JURY

He arranged for her trip to New York with her mother. Mistakenly, he thought she was going to Hollywood, after she repeatedly told him she wanted to leave Hollywood for good. He professed no immoral intent and he claims, committed no immoral act with her in New York nor after her return, during the period specified in the indictment.

On cross-examination yesterday U. S. Attorney Charles H. Carr asked the actor the flat question: "What was the last date you had sexual intercourse with Joan Berry?"

"Sexual intercourse isn't that important in my life," the actor snapped. Recalled to the stand, Miss Berry testified Chaplin told her in June, 1933, he would spend a fortune blackening her character if she publicly accused him of fathering her then unborn baby.

Chaplin still faces civil litigation involving the paternity of Miss Berry's six-month-old daughter, Carol Ann, and another federal indictment of conspiring with six others to deprive her of her civil rights by forcing her to leave California.

Woman Educator Dies

YOUNGSTOWN, April 1.—Mrs. Arthur M. Lane, 55, former national president of Alpha Phi sorority and former dean of women at Northwestern university, died here yesterday after a long illness.

CHURCH RITES

prayer devotional and meditation hours.

A candlelight communion service is planned for 8 p. m. Thursday at the Presbyterian church. The sacrament also will be given in evening rites at the Emmanuel Lutheran church and at morning prayer and communion in the Church of Our Saviour. Adoration rites will be held throughout Thursday at St. Paul's church.

Episcopalians will attend a Good Friday morning prayer and litany service and a three-hour devotional and hymn program at the church from noon until 3 p. m. A service in the German language is planned for Friday evening at the Emmanuel Lutheran church.

Methodists will have a communion service at the church at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Stations of the cross service and special sermon will be held at the Catholic church.

River Packet Starting Annual Trip to Orleans

CINCINNATI, April 1.—In the best of the old river traditions and on a good stage of water, the big white packet Gordon C. Greene leaves tonight on its annual two-week cruise down the Ohio and Mississippi to New Orleans.

Early arrivals of the full passenger list of 165 began boarding the boat during the afternoon from the cobbled wharf and settled themselves for a vacation free of concern for gasoline, rubber, or crowded day coaches.

Although this year's excursion, like last year's, is somewhat streamlined, with side trips by automobile to points of interest off the river eliminated, passengers can expect all the easy-going comfort and color of the packets that used to crowd the rivers before the turn of the century. Only two packets remain on the Mississippi system now, the Gordon and the Golden Eagle of St. Louis.

Close Municipal Hospital

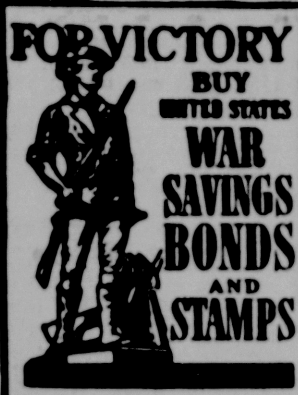

YOUNGSTOWN, April 1.—The municipal contagious disease hospital was ordered closed yesterday as an economy measure.

City health Commissioner Dr. Robert G. Mezzman said the closing would reduce the city's operating cost $7,280 annually, and that all contagious diseases would be handled in general hospitals.

E. Liverpool Drive Over

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 1.—Incomplete reports indicate that this pottery city has attained its $40,000 quota in the Red Cross war fund campaign drive, leaders said today.

The United States is supplying about 70 per cent of the oil used by the United Nations.

Truck Hits Bus At Massillon, 12 Hurt

(By Associated Press)

MASSILLON, April 1.—Twelve war workers were rushed to hospitals after a Canton-New Philadelphia commuter bus and a bakery truck crashed head-on on State Route 21, four miles south of Massillon.

At least two were reported in critical condition.

The bus, operating between Canton plants, Massillon, New Philadelphia and intermediate points, was occupied by approximately 35 war workers. Others suffered minor injuries.

Ambulances dispatched from here brought six of the seriously injured to Massillon City hospital and six to the Republic Steel corporation's Massillon plant hospital.

Identities were not immediately available.

Witnesses said the bus was southbound, returning employees of Canton war plants to their homes.

State highway patrolmen and police from Massillon and nearby Navarre, who investigated the crash, reported the truck apparently swerved into the path of the crowded bus. The truck driver was pinned in the wreckage of his cab until officers released him.

California's "Hospital Spas" in mineral water areas are being considered for rehabilitation of injured service men.

Draft Dodger

FAILURE TO REGISTER for selective service after he became 18 on Jan. 25 resulted in the arrest of William Cammack, center, son of a wealthy and socially prominent Washington, D. C., family. He remained in bed for two months, although not under a doctor's care. Cammack is shown being helped out of a cab and into his home after his release on $1,000 bond. Medical authorities pronounced him physically fit. (International)

TURNPIKE PROGRAM STILL UNDECIDED

COLUMBUS, April 1.—Hal Sours, director of state highways, said today he had not made up his mind where Ohio's extension of the Pennsylvania turnpike should be located "if and when it is extended to Ohio."

A committee representing 33 cities in Pennsylvania and Ohio met with Sours at Youngstown Thursday night and presented a demand that the route be extended into northern Ohio.

If the route is extended, Sours said, "people along national Route 40 across the center of the state should not object as feeder routes probably would be constructed to connect Route 40 to the turnpike."

The committee recommended that the turnpike be routed north of Pittsburgh to provide easy access to Butler, Beaver Falls, New Castle and Sharon, Pa., and Youngstown, Warren, Akron and Cleveland, O.

Dayton Crash Fatal

DAYTON, April 1.—Mahlon R. Tricker, 31, was killed and two other men were seriously injured today when the car driven by Tricker crashed into the New York Central overhead on Route 4 near Wright field.

DEATHS

MRS. HANNAH MONTGOMERY

Mrs. Hannah Montgomery, 84, of 276 S. Lincoln ave., widow of R. A. Montgomery, died at 8:25 p. m. yesterday at Salem City hospital, where she had been a patient for three days for medical treatment.

Born in Highlandtown Aug. 15, 1859, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. MacGillivray, she came to Salem in 1883 and had lived here since. Her husband died Feb. 3, 1924. A daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Bailey, and a son, John H. Montgomery, also preceded her in death.

Mrs. Montgomery was a member of the Presbyterian church. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. J. C. Kennedy, of the home; a son, F. J. Montgomery, of Pittsburgh; and a sister, Mrs. J. N. Russell, of Cleveland; four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral service will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the Stark memorial in charge of Dr. R. D. Walter. Burial will be in Grandview cemetery.

Friends may call at the memorial from 7 to 9 p. m. Monday.

MRS. F. G. DAVIS

WASHINGTONVILLE, April 1.—Mrs. Bessie Davis, 56, wife of F. G. (Ted) Davis, died of complications at 1:55 p. m. Friday at the Salem City hospital following a three-year illness.

The daughter of the late J. C.

and Mary Weikart, she was born in Washingtonville, May 20, 1887, and had lived there her entire life. She was a member of the Trinity Lutheran church and Sunday school. Surviving are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Ruth West and Miss Eleanor Davis at home, and one granddaughter; one sister, Mrs. Clara Weikart of Washingtonville. Funeral service will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the residence in charge of Rev. W. C. Laughbaum and Rev. W. C. Snowball. Burial will be in Washingtonville cemetery. Friends may call at the home anytime Sunday.

1,000 Fish Dumped Into New Mosquito Reservoir

YOUNGSTOWN, April 1.—First 1,000 fish were planted in new mosquito reservoir north of here yesterday with Congressman Michael J. Karwan, who worked to have the reservoir in Trumbull and Ashland counties a "fisherman's paradise." He said he will ask Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York for some muskellunge and will ask the federal government to furnish all other kinds of fish that can live in that water.

Karwan said one-third of Ohio's 614,000 fishermen who bought licenses last year live in Ohio's 19 northeastern counties.

OPPORTUNITIES to buy at advantage are found daily in The News classified advertising columns.
